WOMAN MAY BE CABINET MINISTER

Wide Support in England Given to Proposal of Health Minister.

International News Service: LONDON, Nov. 16.—A woman cabinet minister for England is one of the possibilities of the near future. Wide support has been given to the proposal that a woman should occupy the office of Minister of Health, which is to be added to the British cabinet immediately after the war. Lady Frances Balfour, in a statement in support of the proposal, says:

"We have lately reconstructed our ideas as to the place of woman in our self-governing constitution. Who then would be so worthy for the new post of minister of health as one chosen from among women? She would be represented in parliament by a male under-secretary, and I think I can assure you that our ideal woman health minister would give her under-secretary plenty to do, and her energies would task all his powers of eloquence to explain to parliament."

"A splendid vision of reconstructive work lies before her. And when we remember all the things that the new department must handle, they seem matters where women are the practical leaders. The minister of health will need to be inspector, guardian, counselor, expert on food values, doctor, nurse, cook and sanitary expert. No mere man is sufficient for all these things, if a man were selected, he would need a cabinet of his own, composed entirely of women experts. Therefore we commend the better way, the appointment of a woman in this post of such national household importance."

Edison Plans

Steamers Out of Sailing Ships

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Conversion of more than a million tons of American sailing vessels into steamships was proposed to the shipping board Thursday by Thomas A. Edison. The inventor's suggestion will be the subject of a thorough investigation. Because of the peculiar construction of sailing ships it would be necessary, Mr. Edison said, to equip them with twin screws. Thus equipped their hulls would bear the strain better and at the same time they would develop considerably more speed than if carrying but a single propeller. Mr. Edison will go over details of his plan with Rear Admiral Capps, general manager of the emergency fleet corporation, and if it appears practicable the engineering division of the corporation will take it up.

Although the placing of engines and coal bunkers in the ships would cut down their cargo space the superior speed attained would more than make up for the difference in the opinion of Mr. Edison. American sailing vessels are not now permitted to enter the war zone as they are easy submarine targets.

There are under American registry more than 5,000 sailing vessels of considerably more than 1,000,000 tonnage. The government will also have under its control some 400,000 tons of sailing ships turned over by the French government.

Henry Ford's automobile plant at Detroit, now largely engaged in manufacturing airplane cylinders, is about to begin also the production of ship fittings. Mr. Ford called on the shipping board Thursday and arranged to turn out for the government small parts which his plant can produce in large quantities. The price to be paid for the work he left to the board.

Got Any Old Spy Glasses for U. S.?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Prompted by the patriotic act of an old soldier in California, the navy department issued a call Thursday asking the public to contribute for war service such binoculars, spy glasses and telescopes as may now be in private hands. There is a great shortage of these observation glasses in the navy.

The suggestion was found in the following letter from J. F. Hefflebower, a veteran of the Civil war, 74 years old, and who is now an inmate of the Soldiers' home at Sawtelle, Calif.

"I herewith send you a field glass, wishing to contribute my mite. I hope it may be of service on one of the cruisers and aid in finding some German submarine. Will be glad to know if it can be put in service." The binoculars which accompanied the letter, Secretary Daniels announced, "have been gladly accepted and will be put into immediate use on an American ship in the war zone."
